A. Cloze Test: Making Tea with Grandmother

Fill in the gaps. Use words which complete the sentence in a meaningful way – one word per gap.

Making tea at my Scottish grandmother's _____ was an elaborate process.	1
Her kitchen was obsessively neat. Two Labrador dogs were always _____	1 in and out. She made large quantities of teacakes and biscuits, _____	1 than she could possibly consume herself or _____ to guests. My	1 grandmother wore a look of great _____ when she served us kids her	1 scones, hot-cross buns with raisins, and shortbread cookies. "I will _____	1 you how to make tea", she said. I sat at the kitchen table and _____ her.	1
She used a wash that tinted her grey hair slightly blue. I pretended she was from outer space and that I was learning the _____ of an alien people. Scotland cer-	1 tainly _____ that far away from Western Canada when I was a boy.	1
I watched her warming the china teapot _____ boiling water, emptying it,	1 and then doing it again. She added the finest loose black tea leaves, a spoonful _____ person and an extra one for the empty pot. The tea bag to her was	1 an evil. The kind of tea depended on the _____ of day: Lady Grey, with	1 bergamot and citrus, is my favourite and meant for afternoons. Meanwhile, she had a _____ kettle of water freshly boiled, as she claimed re-boiled water does	1 not let tea infuse. Since the pot was already warm, the tea could steep for at least five mi-minutes, to rid itself of the bitter tannin taste _____ getting cold. Milk and	1 sugar were only added to the individual cups at the very _____, as they	1 too prevent tea from infusing.
And so as the clock struck four, with cups, saucers, and plates of biscuits before us, we could not have been _____. The tea bag never looked the same again.	1

II. Verb forms: Complete the text. Use the correct form of the words in brackets.

In recent years, transport policy _____ (become) more and more of a priority for British governments. As more traffic comes on the roads, more roads _____ (build). The present government, for example, is now preparing _____ (spend) £ 21 billion to build 40 new roads and 100 bypasses. However, it _____ (spend) £ 60 billion on railways as well. Another £ 59 billion will be spent on local transport, mainly to repair local roads.

In Britain, 70% of all trips and 56% of car trips _____ (cover) a distance of less than eight kilometres. If more people _____ (use) public transport like commuter trains, less maintenance of the roads would be needed. But the majority of people obviously prefers _____ (pass) their time travelling in their own cars. If this attitude doesn't change, the government _____ (force) to keep up investments in road repair.
